

The Oregon Public Health Emergency Preparedness Program presents:

Mass Fatalities State Plan Seminar and Tabletop Exercise

Our goal is to introduce the State Mass Fatalities Plan to a broad range of county/regional responders, to discuss the coordination of state and local response, and to ensure the state plan is realistic, clear, and adequate. The tabletop exercise will focus on the state response, but will also stimulate discussion about county/local roles and responsibilities. The scenario for the tabletop exercise will be an earthquake. James Roddey, the Oregon geologist who is the earthquake subject matter expert for the Cascadia Peril scenario, will present on what to expect from such an earthquake in each location.

Participants will receive an orientation to the State Mass Fatalities Plan, participate in discussions related to State and county roles and responsibilities and lines of communications, identify gaps in the State Mass Fatalities Plan, identify local areas that need strengthening, participate in a debriefing, or "hotwash," and make recommendations for closing identified gaps.

Who Should Attend?

We welcome members of the faith community, morticians, funeral directors, medical examiners, Oregon tribes, and professionals from local health departments, hospitals, vital records, emergency management, law enforcement, fire/hazmat, EMS, Healthcare Regional Coordinators, PHEP Liaisons, and other emergency response partners.
